

The institution: Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne University

The laboratory: UMR 8103 - ISJPS : Institut des Sciences Juridique et Philosophique de la Sorbonne

A post-doctoral position in philosophy and political theory.

Duration : 1st October 2019 – 30th September 2020

The postdoctoral fellow will work within the project Norms and Values in the European Migration and Refugee Crisis (NoVaMigra), funded by the European Union's Research and Innovation Programme Horizon 2020.

With a combination of social scientific analysis, as well as legal and philosophical normative reconstruction and theory, NoVaMigra has three main objectives :

- to provide a precise and comprehensive understanding of core values and norms in Europe ;
- explain how they motivate political, administrative and societal agents with regard to migration and the integration of migrants and refugees into European societies,
- and consider, if and why, this has changed with and since the refugee crisis 2015.

This will lead to better normative and efficiency assessments of migration/integration policies and measures, and to a clearer grasp of reasons for their endorsement or resistance to them.

For more information : <http://novamigra.eu/>

Keywords : Global and transnational governance, international law, human rights, Migration, EU charter of fundamental rights, Human rights.

Job description

The postdoctoral fellow will contribute to the various workpackages that involve the NoVaMigra team in Paris 1.

More precisely, she / he shall

- analyse the emergence of populist discourses in the French political scene since the Refugee Crisis and will be likely to coordinate the synthesis of NoVaMigra partners' contributions on populist discourses;
- review the theoretical models of cosmopolitanism and assess the European vision(s) of cosmopolitanism;
- coordinate the preparation of the final conference in Brussels on European cosmopolitanism and contribute to the synthesis of NoVaMigra research on this topic.

She / he will participate to NoVaMigra meetings and events when necessary.

Location : Institut des Sciences Juridique et philosophique de la Sorbonne (UMR 8103), Université Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne, Paris.

Contract type : 80 %

Start : 1st October 2019

Monthly salary : 2 300 € gross

Requirements

- Suitable candidates will have a PhD degree in political philosophy or political theory with a specialization in normative and legal issues.
- A capacity to work in a multidisciplinary team.

- Experience or interest in working on media analysis will be considered as an asset.
- Good skills in written and spoken English and French are expected.

Application

Candidates should send a set of application documents in English or French that will include:

- a CV with a complete list of publications and a summary of the PhD dissertation
- a letter of motivation
- names and contact information of two academic referees.

Applications should be sent to: Isabelle.Aubert@univ-paris1.fr ; Sophie.Guerard-de-Latour@univ-paris1.fr

The closing date for application is 12th July 2019.